Country concert at Bridal Veil

25 July 1991

Badger Martin, a local singer songwriter, will perform at Bridal Veil Falls Friday. -26

He will perform songs from his soon to be released album "Badger Martin — Rain." His performance credits include a televised performance at the Beau Arts Ball, Las Vegas, and extensive touring throughout the Midwest as a solo act. His style is modern country and soft rock.

Also to be featured at the concert are Jay Scott, Kentucky Covington, Loren Todecheenie, and David

Gardner, all solo acts as well. "We've made the show very family oriented," says Badger, "we want every one to pack up the kids, come to the falls, relax on the grass, and listen to the music."

The performance starts at 6 p.m. and will end approximately at 10 p.m. There will be a $5 admission fee, food and beverages will be available. A country dance will follow the ground level concert, with a ride up the tram to the Rocky Mountain Lodge. For more information call 225-4461.

empties into the Shasta Reservoir, have been poisoned. One 10-mile stretch, a local environmental group reports, is dead for at least a decade. Everything in the water in the vicinity of the spill — every fish, every crustacean, every mammal — was wiped out. And that's just the beginning of the damage: Bears that eat the fish, deer that drink the water, birds that live there, and so on, are unquestionably in danger?

And people? Authorities are saying that water supplies haven't been contaminated. But frankly, I find that hard to believe. Human beings may not keel over after one sip of water from the reservoir, but the long-group reports, is dead for at least a decade.

pected carcinogens.

— An estimated 90 percent of pesticides end up polluting surface water. But according to Worldwatch Institute, "The federal government has set drinking water standards for only six pesticides — none of which are among the 17 that the EPA reports have contaminated groundwater."

Of course, there's no way to undo the spill. But we can try to prevent another one.
